

Ron Hagedorn

Ron is a third generation semi-serious hobby photographer who likes to experiment with the many aspects of photography. The relatively recent developments in digital manipulation have opened vast new vistas and possibilities of an older art form.

Ron has had a variety of careers as a result of many forks in the road. Starting with naval architecture, a UW degree in cartography, army officer, design engineer, heavy construction superintendent, general contractor and builder, graphic design and production business owner. Now retired, living the good life in LakeLand Village (Allyn) with wife Sharon, trying to balance the many interests and still keep up with the grandchildren
